A. Read these lines from the poem and answer the questions.

'I saw a little I beg your pardon'

1. Where was the elephant standing?

Ans. The elephant was standing in the poet's garden in England.

2. What is 'here'?

Ans. The word 'here' means the place in England.

3. Where in Africa does the elephant want to go?

Ans. The elephant wants to go home by train.

B. Answer these questions.

1. What did the police do? Did the elephant like what the police did?

How do you know?

Ans. a. The police put the elephant in a cell at first. Then they tied him to a lamppost.

b. The elephant did not like what the police did with him.

c. I think it is because the elephant ran away from there when the policemen lay sleeping by the twinkling light of dawn.

2. Where might be the elephant right now?

Ans. I think the elephant might be at his home in Africa.

3. What do you think the authorities must do if they see a wild animal on the road?

Ans. The authorities should try to keep the animal at its proper place because a wild animal should not be on the road. It's dangerous.
